

POSITIONING

EYES ON THE GAME. EYES ON THE ODDS.

A football scout's report on the markets. We file scout reports — on teams, fixtures, and the prices the books are putting on them — for fans who want to read more than just the line.

VOICE

Observational. Evaluative. The voice of someone with a notebook on the touchline making notes for the match-day briefing.

"Scouted" is the verb. Each fixture gets a scout report. Each market gets a scout's call.

Why this brand. Scouting culture in football is its own register — observational, evaluative, written down in notebooks. The Scout positions us as the fan with the better eye, not the gambler with the better tip. Reticle motif + scout-report stamp give the visual identity a recognisable structure across every piece of content. Caveat: the football "scout" space is crowded — Scouted, FM Scout, Scout.com legacy — and the brand would have to fight for SEO oxygen against existing publications.
