WC 2026 LAUNCH · BRAND TO LOCK BY MON

LOCKED PALETTE

#FFFFFF · paper

#F0ECE2 · rule

The brand we're naming. Educational oddschecker for football fans, framed as scout reports on fixtures and markets. Anti-tipster, anti-gambling-promo. Premium publication feel. Reticle/scope as system glyph. Modern sans, no broadsheet serif. Launch is the 2026 World Cup. Each domain below is a different brand name — picking the URL is picking the wordmark, not just the address.

PREMIUM TIER $180 / 2 YR · .AI

A directional brand bet — only worth it if the name becomes the lock-in.

thescoutroom.ai

A coach's tactical war-room. Locks the entire scout-report system into the URL. Strongest fit for the existing "The Scout" wordmark direction we've been mocking up.

FOOTBALL-NATIVE SCOUT SYSTEM
EDITORIAL

→ WORDMARK: THE SCOUT ROOM / THE SCOUT

scoutroom.ai

Same metaphor without the article. Cleaner URL, weaker as a wordmark — editorial brands generally lean on "The." Slight downgrade vs the article-led variant.

FOOTBALL-NATIVE SCOUT SYSTEM

→ WORDMARK: SCOUT ROOM

oddsprimer.ai

Most explicit on the educational wedge — "primer" reads as teaching tool. Direct on positioning but loses football-native warmth. "Odds" leans market-vocabulary; risks pulling tone toward gambling-promo despite the educational frame.

EDUCATIONAL DIRECT-WEDGE GENERIC

→ WORDMARK: ODDS PRIMER

scoutline.ai

Scouting + touchline / data line / lineup. Subtle football reference, slightly abstract. Less obvious payoff than scoutroom — the audience has to do the work to land it.

FOOTBALL-NATIVE SCOUT SYSTEM
ABSTRACT

→ WORDMARK: SCOUTLINE

thepitchline.ai

Triple read: football pitch + the betting line + a "pitch" (argument). Clever wordplay. Risk: "pitch" carries sales-pitch connotations next to a betting market — subtle promo undertone.

FOOTBALL-NATIVE WORDPLAY
"PITCH" RISK

→ WORDMARK: THE PITCH LINE

thestand.ai

Football stands + editorial "taking a stand." Strongest publication brand of the .ai set. Multi-sport extension easy. Less directly tied to the existing scout-report system.

EDITORIAL MULTI-SPORT PUBLICATION

→ WORDMARK: THE STAND

STANDARD TIER $10 / 2 YR · .COM

Defensive locks — cheap enough to register all of, even if you only use one.

oddsprimer.com

Same name as the .ai version at 1/18 the cost. .com is universal; .ai signals "tech / AI-native" — weaker fit for an educational-oddschecker pivot. Pick this over the .ai unless the brand specifically wants the AI signal.

EDUCATIONAL STANDARD TLD
DIRECT-WEDGE

→ WORDMARK: ODDS PRIMER

themorningxi.com

Football XI (starting eleven) + morning newsletter. Beautiful publication framing — implies daily content cadence. Strongest pure-publication brand in the entire shortlist.

FOOTBALL-NATIVE EDITORIAL
DAILY CADENCE

→ WORDMARK: THE MORNING XI

themorning11.com

Same idea as themorningxi but with a numeric "11." Easier to spell and say, loses some elegance — "XI" is more memorable in a wordmark than "11." Workable as a backup or alt.

FOOTBALL-NATIVE EDITORIAL BACKUP

→ WORDMARK: THE MORNING 11

DECISION FRAME

The economic question is misleading. $180 vs $10 isn't really 18× more expensive — it's a directional brand commitment vs a defensive lock. Cheap .com domains are insurance you can register all of and only use one. The .ai shortlist is a live commitment to a wordmark — only worth $180 each if the name actually becomes the brand.

Suggested move. Lock themorningxi.com + oddsprimer.com for ~$20 total as defensive insurance regardless of where this lands. Then pick one .ai if and only if a name on that list is the wordmark you commit to. Strongest .ai candidates: thescoutroom.ai (if "The Scout" is the lock-in name and we keep mocking up the scout-report system) or thestand.ai (if the brand needs maximum editorial flexibility and easier multi-sport extension).

Open question for Faktor. Of the seven names — The Scout · Scout Room · Odds Primer · Scoutline · The Pitch Line · The Stand · The Morning XI — which one feels like a publication you'd want to read on a Saturday morning? That's the lock-in.
